What is MFAP?

- A tool to communicate to leaders, issues of importance to Military Personnel, Retirees, Family Members and Civilians
- The people's perspective of adjustments and improvements that will increase quality of life and service member retention
- A way to address the demands of military life by identifying quality of life "hot spots" as the Military transforms
- One of the ways Military leaders demonstrate they care about the people who make up the military family.

The MFAP Story

MFAP began in the late 1970s through the efforts of Army spouses who wanted to improve the quality of life for their families. The Army Family Action Plan was established in 1984 and continues the grass roots process begun by Army spouses. The Air Force initiated the Caring For People Conference in 2009 in conjunction with the Year of the Air Force Family. With the advent of the Joint Base movement, JB MDL has taken what is now termed Military Family Action Plan, as a best practice, and launched its first joint base conference in October 2009.
